

Contributors

Kairos, Vol. 1, No. 1

Subhendra Bhowmick is Assistant Professor of Sociology in Sidho Kanho Birsha University, India. His area of research is dirt and the sociology and politics of dirt. He has been published in international and national journals of repute such as History and Sociology of South Asia, Café Dissensus, Transnational Literature, etc. He has recently written on Time, Derrida and the Mahabharata.

Sanchayita Paul Chakraborty is a doctoral research candidate in North Bengal University. She is working on Colonial Bengali Women's Writings in India. She has contributed in journals such as Intersections, Gender and Equality in Asia and the Pacific, Criterion, Café Dissensus, etc. She has also contributed in some anthologies on women's writing.

Saswat Samay Das is Associate Professor, Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, IIT Kharagpur, India. He works in the domain of current trends in critical theory with a special focus on Giles Deleuze. He has contributed in many international journals of repute such as Interventions, International Journal of Postcolonial Studies, Journal of Social Movement Studies, Contemporary South Asia, History and Sociology of South Asia, etc.

Seema Ahmad has submitted her M.Phil thesis at the Institute of Development Studies Kolkata, Kolkata on the choice of educational institutions of Muslim girls with a special focus on women madrasas. She has presented papers on the marginalised position of the Muslim women as well as on their struggles for empowerment. She is currently working on Madrasa and the Muslim women question in West Bengal, India.

Pavan Malreddy is a Researcher in English Studies at Goethe-University Frankfurt. He has studied and taught Sociology, Anthropology, Development Studies and English Literature in the Netherlands, Singapore, Canada and Germany. His recent books include, Orientalism, Terrorism and Indigensim: South Asian Readings in Postcolonialism, Sage, 2015 and Reworking Postcolonialism: Globalization: Labour, and Rights (coedited with Birte Heidemann, Ole Birk Laursen and Janet Wilson), Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan, 2015

Manas Dutta is Assistant Professor in History in Kazi Nazrul University, India. He has recently been awarded the Charles Wallace India Trust Fellowship for research visit to London. His area of research focuses on military history in colonial and contemporary India. He has contributed in reputed international journals in his field such as South Asia Research, Journal of Defence Studies, Studies in People's History, etc.

Mursed Alam is Assistant Professor in Gour College, University of Gour Banga, India. His area of doctoral research is revisiting Subaltern Studies and he has contributed in journals such as Rethinking Marxism, Journal of Postcolonial Writing, Subaltern Speak, Economic and Political Weekly, etc. He would be guest editing a special issue of the journal Café Dissensus on the Muslim Question in 2016.

Debarati Dutta is a Doctoral Scholar in the Department of Humanities and Social sciences, IIT Kharagpur. Her area of research is postcolonial studies and their intervention into the theories of Antonio Negri and Zizek. She has done her M.Phil in English and has also taught in the undergraduate programme of Calcutta University before she joined IIT kharagpur in 2011. She has contributed in International Journals and has worked on Indian Sahitya Akademi ventures for translation of Indian languages.

Dhritiman Chakraborty is pursuing his doctoral research on Postcolonial Political in India from Center for Studies in Social Sciences, Kolkata. He also teaches English Literature in Raiganj Surendranath College, West Bengal. He has contributed in international journals of repute such as Interventions, International Journal of Postcolonial Studies, Postcolonial Studies, Journal of Politics, Economic and Political Weekly, Contemporary South Asia, etc.

Bishnupada Roy is Associate Professor, University of North Bengal, India. He is one of the editors of Kairos the Journal of Critical Symposium. He is an established and widely published poet and was nominated for many international poetry awards like Pushcart poetry prize. He has already published five books of his poems.

Abhinandan Das, Assistant Professor in History in Raiganj Surendranath College, is also pursuing his doctoral research on Politics of Industrialisation in post-Independent Bengal from Jadavpur University, West Bengal.

Anindya Sekhar Purakayastha is Associate Professor, Kazi Nazrul University, India. He co-edits Kairos, the Journal of Critical Symposium and is one of the founding members of the Postcolonial Studies Association of the Global South (PSAGS). For more details visit <http://knuedu.academia.edu/ANINDYASEKHARPURAKAYASTHA>